

Notes from the Editor-in-Chief

JWE provides a refereed source of information in the field of female entrepreneurship and education and related topics. We publish original papers and conceptual and empirical articles including national and international studies of female enterprise creation, small business management, minority issues in entrepreneurship, learning styles and learning modalities and more.

This issue of JWE is especially focused on Case studies of female entrepreneurship and education around the world. However, in upcoming issues we will also strive for a greater number of articles that will include case studies because the Case study methods in entrepreneurship expand the current knowledge-base by creating a space for dialog on the subject and bringing together diverse approaches. Two types of cases are welcome. One is the case studies of policy implementation and the other is the firm level cases.

The issue contains seven articles from Studying the barriers of women's progress in the organization & its impact on organizational commitment and job satisfaction: A Case study at Tehran tax organization to Female entrepreneurship and an emerging conceptual framework of based on the Peruvian Case.

We invite potential authors to send us a high quality original Research Papers, Case Studies and Book Reviews from both academicians as well as practitioners. Submitted manuscripts will be peer reviewed. Double blind review system will take about two months and the Journal reserves the right to make necessary editorial amendments in the final manuscript to suit Journal's format. There is no submission fee.

Finally, I am thankful to authors from United States, Great Britain, Italy, Spain, Turkey, Pakistan, India, Bangladesh, Iran, Peru and Serbia who expressed their interest for our peer Journal and published their articles in JWE this year.

Thank you!
